

The Best Types of Window Film for Your Front Door

U.S. Film Crew Article (Page 1 of 2)

In interior design, glass doors make an aesthetically appealing statement in addition to providing you with an uninterrupted view, a chance to maximize natural light during the day, and an easier maintenance process.

Using window film for your front door can take these advantages to the next level. An additional coating over your glass door not only upgrades the way your home looks, but it also adds an extra level of protection and security to your home.

If you are looking to upgrade your front porch, and reinforce the security of your safe haven, here are some great window film designs you can install on your door.

Solar Window Films

Extreme heat and solar glare are problems if you live in areas with higher year-round temperatures.

By installing solar window film on the front door of your home, you can reduce the glare and heat inside your home while maintaining both function and aesthetics.

Solar window film can diffuse and reflect light off the surface of your window, which reduces the temperature and glare inside. This is a win-win because you will no longer need to worry about skyrocketing energy bills when you have a door that shields against the sun.

Security Window Films

Security film is a type of window film designed to strengthen the glass against external impacts. It is shatterproof, which means it is difficult to break or breach the glass it is applied to.

Unprotected glass doors are often an easy target for intruders. So if you want to retain the glass door's sleek aesthetics without compromising the security of your home, use a shatterproof security film.

A security window film can delay the entry of intruders too, giving you enough time to get help or call the relevant authorities, if the need ever arises.

An additional coating over your glass door not only upgrades the way your home looks, but it also adds an extra level of protection and security to your home.

For more information, please contact U.S. Film Crew at 412-961-TINT or visit www.usfilmcrew.com

The Best Types of Window Film for Your Front Door

U.S. Film Crew Article (Page 2 of 2)

In addition to protection against burglary, a shatterproof film can also protect your glass against vandalism, accidents, and natural disasters. High-quality security films can even make your doors resistant to explosions.

Decorative Window Films

Decorative window films, with their immense design options, are perfect for those who love to get detailed with their home decoration. They can also be ordered in customized designs, making your options endless.

For those who prefer a sleeker look, you can choose single-color tints that match the rest of your home's exterior.

If you want to take a bolder approach, you can choose complex patterns, have multiple colors, and make sure your home makes the most unforgettable first impression to all your visitors.

Decorative window film for your door can be the perfect way to express your unique creativity and make a space that you are proud to call your own.

Frosted window films, another variation of decorative films, can be used for privacy as well as for decorative purposes.

With frosted window film, you can feel more secure by obscuring the view from both sides of the glass. You enjoy more privacy and fewer distractions from the busy throng outside.

Frosted film is also a more flexible, economical alternative to frosted or etched glass. That means if you want to redecorate your door with a new look, you can choose a frosted window film with the knowledge that you can remove the film easily whenever you feel like a change.

We understand that modern minimalism is not for everyone; particularly those who love a little personalized flare in their space.

Window Film for Your Front Door—a Plethora of Design Opportunities

Whether it is privacy and security you want or to truly express yourself with your decor, using window film lets you achieve whatever design needs you have. With the help of a professional window film installer, you can buy, get your chosen design made, and get it installed easily.

In addition to protection against burglary, a shatterproof film can also protect your glass against vandalism, accidents, and natural disasters.

For more information, please contact U.S. Film Crew at 412-961-TINT or visit www.usfilmcrew.com