

Clever Ways to Use Decorative Window Film in Your Home

U.S. Film Crew Article (Page 1 of 3)

Modern window film has come a long way from just being a way of providing shade for your home's interiors.

Today they offer a plethora of other great benefits, such as temperature control and security.

For homeowners who want to make their homes look even more beautiful with an aesthetic upgrade, window film solutions such as decorative window film, also known as decorative film, is a cost-effective and easy way to give a new and refined look to their homes.

With this window film, you won't need to make expensive architectural changes, like replacing your glass surfaces with costly etched glass. Unlike etched glass, however, decorative window film offers a few other benefits as well.

Here are some clever ways you can get the best out of your decorative film for your home.

Conceal cabinet contents

Glass cabinets can be a beautiful addition to any home. When there's too much stuff in them, however, they start to look messy and turn into an eyesore. But this can be fixed with some decorative film.

This window film can be applied to the cabinet's glass surfaces to hide the contents inside, without compromising the overall design of the cabinet itself. This window film also comes in a range of attractive patterns that can make your cabinets look more aesthetically pleasing.

Alternatively, decorative film can be used to make the contents of your cabinets private if you have guests over. This is especially useful when you use cabinets to store essential items.

Reduce the effect of intense solar heat and light

Though not as effective as solar window film, decorative window film can also provide a bit of protection against solar heat.

Many modern homes feature skylights and large, expansive windows that can let in excess amounts of sunlight, and this can lead to the build-up of heat, the glare that can hurt the eyes and cause headaches, and damage to furniture and upholstery.

Glass cabinets can be a beautiful addition to any home. When there's too much stuff in them, however, they start to look messy and turn into an eyesore. But this can be fixed with some decorative film.

Clever Ways to Use Decorative Window Film in Your Home

U.S. Film Crew Article (Page 2 of 3)

While decorative window film isn't designed to completely block out light, the stained-glass-like or frosted patterns they feature can diffuse sunlight and reduce its intensity, allowing you to maintain favorable lighting conditions and reduce heat build-up.

Increase privacy in bathrooms

Open bathroom designs are trending these days among homeowners who like well-lit and spacey interiors. This design choice, however, doesn't offer much privacy.

By installing decorative film, you still maintain an open interior design while adding a bit more privacy to your bathrooms. Homeowners can also maintain the aesthetic vibe they were going for and still let in plenty of light.

In addition, since decorative film only needs to be applied to your bathroom's glass surfaces, this will allow you to save money on replacing existing shower glass with etched glass.

Create comfortable open spaces

A lot of homeowners are now remodeling their homes to achieve a more contemporary look, and this usually involves installing floor-to-ceiling windows and glass walls.

Decorative film can be used to add a more unique and stylish charm to your home, creating a visually pleasing and calming atmosphere.

This window film can also be used to improve privacy and thereby comfort for workspaces in your home.

Maintain privacy from busy neighborhoods

When your home faces a road in a busy neighborhood, maintaining privacy can be difficult. While installing blinds and curtains is an option, they block out light, making you rely on electric lighting indoors even during the daytime.

With decorative film, you can block out views into your home, giving you all the privacy you need, without affecting your home's aesthetics too much.

Installing decorative film may also be a good crime deterrent as you'll prevent suspicious individuals from seeing what kinds of valuables you have in your home.

By installing decorative film, you still maintain an open interior design while adding a bit more privacy to your bathrooms. Homeowners can also maintain the aesthetic vibe they were going for and still let in plenty of light.

For more information, please contact U.S. Film Crew at 412-961-TINT or visit www.usfilmcrew.com

Clever Ways to Use Decorative Window Film in Your Home

U.S. Film Crew Article (Page 3 of 3)

Speak to a professional about decorative window film

Decorative film doesn't just improve your home's aesthetics—it also comes with many useful benefits, such as improving privacy and lowering the intensity of natural light. If you want to experience the benefits of this window film, get in touch with a professional window film installer in your area today!

Installing decorative film may also be a good crime deterrent as you'll prevent suspicious individuals from seeing what kinds of valuables you have in your home.

For more information, please contact U.S. Film Crew at 412-961-TINT or visit www.usfilmcrew.com